

5 Ways to Start Feeling Better Today

A No-Overwhelm Guide to Recharge Your Body & Mind
Naturally

By Jacque McLaughlin

<https://jacquemclaughlin.com>

1. Hydrate Like You Mean It

Even mild dehydration can drain your energy, affect your mood, and impair your focus. Aim for half your body weight in ounces of water each day (e.g., 140 lbs = 70 oz). Add a pinch of sea salt or a splash of lemon for better absorption.

Bonus tip: Try adding a drop of citrus essential oil (labeled for internal use) to a glass water bottle for a refreshing twist.

2. Swap Out Fragrance for Fresh Air

Artificial fragrances in candles, air fresheners, and personal care products can disrupt your hormones and add to your toxic load. Ditch the synthetics and opt for genuine essential oils like peppermint, lemon, or rosemary for an uplifting, toxin-free boost.

Quick win: Diffuse peppermint in your workspace to improve focus and mental clarity.

5. Ditch the Guilt & Prioritize Rest

Midlife women are often caregivers and overachievers. But your body can't restore energy without adequate rest—physical, mental, and emotional.

Try this tonight: Turn off screens an hour before bed, dim the lights, and use calming oils like lavender or cedarwood to ease into deeper sleep.

♥ Remember:

You're not tired because you're aging. You're tired because your body is asking for something different —and you're wise
enough to listen.

Jacque McLaughlin

<https://jacquemclaughlin.com>

jacque@jacquemclaughlin.com

If you are interested in essential oils, here's your link to the highest quality on the market,

Using this link to set up your account will also get you access to my educational vault for natural wellness for Free!

You can also use the QR Code