

Valentine's Tips to Be THE GREATEST Lover to Your Love

Being the best Lover starts with the moment you wake up and how you love all day, every day! Here are some practical ways to do that for any couple!
(Some of these apply for the marrieds only. You'll know!)

Do This:

- Set Your Mind on Things Above (God)
- Pray for your Loved one before meeting up (then together if possible)
- Keep a Calm, Gentle, Joyful, Playful, Focused demeanor (no drama zone)
- Guard Your Body as Sacred and Honor Their's Likewise
- Practice Good Hygiene: Brush Teeth & Floss, Cut & File nails, Freshen Deodorant, Brush Hair, Shave, QTip the Ears (don't be lazy)
- Clean the Home / Set the space- Wash Sheets/Blankets, Dust, Clean the Bathtub and set up candles for the bubbles, String some lights, clear the clutter, have Music
- Make Reservations a week in advance for meals and babysitters for the kids
- Clean The Car, Fill Gas Tank
- Learn What Makes Him/Her Feel Loved, Seen, Heard - pay attention but also ask
- Give a Small Gift (made or bought) appropriate to the Relationship and Budget- card, flowers, jewelry, experience, food, affirmations, evening out, massage, apparel, etc
- Remember it's Not about You when you choose to Serve & Love another
- Laugh, Hug, Serve, Bless, Honor, Play, Be Thankful in every moment

Don't Do This:

- Don't forget to Do The Things Above
- Don't Keep God out Of The Date
- Don't unzip anything unless you're married of course
- Don't Be On a Date with Your Device
- Don't Be Rude/ Impatient if things don't go as You Planned
- Don't Push Hot Buttons or Discuss Topics That are Emotionally Charged
- Don't Compare or Compete with Selves or Other Couples
- Don't Skip The Small Things like holding hands, open doors, arranging for babysitters,
- Don't begin grumbling/negative conversation
- Don't Expect The Other to Know Your Needs/Wants if you haven't shared them
- Don't defile the purity of the relationship/marital bed/covenant
- Don't Forget to Help Clean Up from the Date
- Don't be Selfish, Rude, Demanding, Impure, Foolish, Disconnected
- Don't Forget to Pray
- Don't forget to have fun & play!
